

28th Annual National Conference of The Compost Council of Canada September 19-21 2018 - Montréal, QC

Your business plays an important role in the success of organics recycling in Canada.

The opportunity for organics recycling and compost production extends across all walks of life and sectors. With well over 40% of our waste stream comprised of organic residuals, municipal and private sector waste management programs deliver quantum diversion results when and only when organic residuals are included in diversion strategies, collection and processing programs. Include the added benefits realized with greenhouse gas reductions and the products created for the health and vitality of soils as well as water conservation and the environmental and economic benefits are enormous.

On the occasion of the 28th Anniversary of our national conference, The Compost Council of Canada is inviting vendors of organics recycling technologies, equipment suppliers, consultants and program services to be part of our Conference and Exhibit area, showcasing products and services that support diversion goals and sustainability.
