

18th Annual National Composting Conference

September 17-19, 2008

Château Mont-Sainte-Anne, Beaupré Québec

The concentrated focus on organic residuals management can exponentially change our world for the better. Whether in the backyard, on-site or through large-scale operations, both composting and the use of the many value-added compost products created through the process hold essential solutions for environmental and economic sustainability. The 18th Annual National Composting Conference offers great opportunities to learn from the best-of-the-best composting knowledge base while enhancing your networks and industry contacts across Canada.
