33rd Annual Organics Recycling Conference

Wednesday September 27th to Friday September 29th, 2023

www.compost.org

Organics recycling is a vital strategy to combat climate change and improve our well-being.

Through the diversion of food scraps, yard trimmings and other organic materials from landfills and into organics recycling programs, we reduce greenhouse gas emissions, enrich the soil, protect biodiversity and conserve water. And yet, Canada still has a lot of room for improvement, currently missing immediate opportunities to fight battles more effectively for healthier soils and a calmer climate.

Join the troops involved in organics recycling and soil health.

Whether you are a business leader, community steward or organics recycling champion, enlist in our conference. We will be digging deep into the latest advances which are achieving victories in waste diversion, local environmental stewardship, energy recovery, climate change mitigation, water conservation, soil productivity and health. Sign up NOW!

About the Battle Plan & Logistics for our Conference

Our three-day plan involves organics recycling facility tours as well as presentations and time to network, meet exhibitors and capitalize on training opportunities.

To be held in Montréal with options to attend virtually, simultaneous interpretation in English and French will provide access to the front lines in organics recycling and soil health developments. Don't miss this opportunity to learn, meet and capture the momentum that organics recycling can deliver.
